Three options:

1. Classroom Visit – 40 minutes

Cost $100, no taxes

May be streamed within your school at no extra cost

Eric answers questions from students and also reads a suspenseful scene from one of his mysteries. He points out his use of the five senses and he emphasizes the importance of planning in advance of writing a story.

The presentation includes amusing stories about Eric's life as a teacher, and how the reluctant readers in his class inspired him to begin writing such books as Murder on the Canadian, the First Nations mystery The Unmasking of 'Ksan and more than 20 other stories set in real Canadian locations both large and small. Free study guides are available at Eric's website, ericwilson.com.

“It was AWESOME...very fun and the kids were sure engaged even though it was Zoom.”
- A teacher in Terrace, BC

2. Writing Workshop – 40 minutes

Cost $75, no taxes, when combined with a Classroom Visit

May be streamed within your school at no extra cost

This hands-on workshop is recommended for a maximum of 30 students. At times the students work individually, at other times they work in pairs.

Students develop characters and settings from their own experience. Eric also provides suggestions to help students develop a story making use of their character and setting creations.

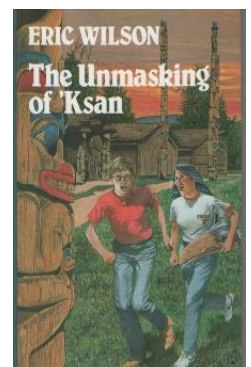

Regarding the workshop, a Victoria teacher wrote to say: “It was FANTASTIC! The kids were amazing for a rainy afternoon, you would not have known it. This event really got them thinking and inspired. Sometimes you just never know, but it was super.”
